LOVE TO CLIMB? WANT TO HELP PROTECT YOUR FAVORITE CRAG?

The Leave No Trace Traveling Trainers are coming to ABP!

Thursday, March 2 @ 7:00pm – 7:45pm

The Leave No Trace Center for Outdoor Ethics, a national organization that teaches people how to enjoy the outdoors responsibly, is partnering with Travis County Parks and Austin Bouldering Project to host a fun and educational workshop focused on minimum-impact climbing and bouldering skills and techniques.

During this FREE Leave No Trace Workshop, you'll learn:

- ✓ Interesting skills to minimize your impacts while climbing.
- ✓ The best methods to protect crags and boulders, interact with other visitors, respect wildlife, and take care of the places you like to climb.
- ✓ Interactive activities learning the Leave No Trace Seven Principles for Climbing/Bouldering.
- ✓ How to help others develop a sense of crag and resource stewardship.
- ✓ How to get more involved with the national education program.
